

We are registered with the Indiana Telephone Privacy program and it has worked remarkably well up until recently. Now, Bank of America has been calling our phone on a daily basis, including weekends, repeatedly. Today they called 11 times. I find that harrassing. They call from 8 in the morning until 9 at night trying to reach my daughter who is rarely able to be reached at our number. That means Bank of America is harrassing my husband and me and we have no account with them at all. When we do answer their calls it is usually a recorded message telling us to hold for the next available representative. It is ridiculous to be put on hold when you are answering your phone. If you start actually allowing these banks to call people, things are only going to get worse until they are intolerable. Our homes should be sacrosanct. They should be our havens and we should not have to tolerate being bothered like this. Where else is a hard-working person supposed to go to get away from the world if he can't even find peace from unwanted phone calls in his own home?? Please do NOT allow these institutions access to our homes in this manner. They can always use the U.S. Mail to contact people.

Thank you.
